Northville resident loses $300,000 in Bitcoin scam

One Northville Township resident lost nearly $300,000 in a Bitcoin scam operation recently, prompting a warning from police authorities. Residents are being cautioned following a recent surge in fraudulent scams targeting unsuspecting individuals involving Bitcoin and even gold bricks, according to a prepared statement from police.

In these scams, perpetrators falsely represent themselves as law enforcement officials to intimidate victims into making immediate payments under false pretenses, police said. Victims usually receive calls from unknown individuals claiming to be police officers. These callers inform victims that they are under investigation for alleged crimes or have warrants for their arrest.

Victims are coerced into staying on the phone and are instructed not to disclose the situation to anyone. The caller often exerts pressure and demands immediate payment, typically requested as bitcoin or cash transfers.

In the recent Northville Township resident, suspects made contact with the victim multiple times, obtained nearly $300,000 in cash, Bitcoin and ultimately came to the victim's home and retrieved where gold bricks, police said.

Email phishing cases are also on the rise during which victims receive an email and are misled into believing they have overpaid their PayPal or similar account. The victims are directed to provide immediate access to their accounts to rectify the supposed overpayment. In July, a resident became a victim to one of these emails phishing scams, resulting in the loss of $50,000 in cash and an additional $50,000 in Bitcoin.

Law enforcement agencies do not request payments over the phone, especially in the form of Bitcoin.

In this case, too, the suspects came to the resident's home to collect the payment then fled the area. Northville Township investigators utilized License Plate Reader (LPR) technology and the suspects were apprehended in Ohio and $50,000 recovered.

"We want to remind our residents that law enforcement agencies do not request payments over the phone, especially in the form of Bitcoin. If you receive a call or email claiming you are under investigation or have warrants, and the only way to resolve the issue is by making an immediate payment, it is undoubtedly a scam," cautioned Northville Township Deputy Police Chief Matthew MacKenzie.

To safeguard against these fraudulent schemes, residents are cautioned to verify callers and remember that law enforcement agencies do not demand payments over the phone. Residents should cautious of unsolicited calls claiming legal issues requiring urgent payment and never grant remote access to your computer to unknown individuals.

If instructed to stay on the phone and not disclose the situation while making a payment, it is likely a scam, officials warned. Genuine entities do not pressure for immediate payments via unconventional methods such as Bitcoin or gift cards, they added. Residents are encouraged to remain vigilant and report any suspicious communications to local authorities promptly.

For further information or to report a potential scam, contact the Northville Township Police Department at (248) 349-9400.

Polish National Association dancers mark 44th year at Plymouth Fall Festival

It's about tradition and heritage and when the Polish National Association Centennial Dancers (PNA) take to the Kellogg Park stage during Fall Festival this year, they bring centuries of history with them.

The twirling skirts and festive ribbons that adorn the bright costumes are symbols of a treasured ethnic heritage being passed from generation to generation through dance.

Marie Boyle, director of the group, noted that the 44-year long history of the PNA dancers at the Fall Festival has been helpful in allowing the group to continue to preserve their heritage.

The PNA Centennial Dancers are a children's Polish folk-dance ensemble serving the Polish American communities in Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties. Formed in 1980 by the Polish National Alliance (PNA) Lodge 53, formerly PNA Lodge 3240, the dance ensemble has been educating students, ages 3-18, and sharing Polish heritage and culture through music and dance for four decades.

Boyle, who has been involved with the group for 32 years, danced with the troupe herself from the age of 3 until she was 18 and now her daughter Gabriella, 5, has joined the dancers. Her tiny costume includes the same traditional skirt Boyle wore when she danced on the Kellogg Park stage. Boyle said many families in the group even pass down the costumes which are authentic to their Polish heritage. She added that her youngest daughter, Hannah, who is 2, is eager to start dancing with the group this year.

The Polish National Association Dancers will appear for the 44th year at the Plymouth Fall Festival set for Sept. 6, 7 and 8.

Costumes worn by performers from the Polish National Association Dancers are historic reproductions.

"Each year our dancers learn both regional and national dances of Poland as well as Polish American polkas. Our co-choreographers are Pani Paulina Kowalczyk and Pani Natalia Jackson, together they choreograph nearly 15 dance numbers a year and teach them to our more than 60 dancers.

We also offer beginner Polish language classes for children ages 6 and older which are taught by Pani Ania Doman," Boyle explained.

She added that this year the dancers are a mix of both girls and boys.

"The boys have their own traditional unique steps in the dances," she said, "Authentic Polish dances are partner dances, so it's good to have the boys." See Dancers, page 2.

Luxury condominiums proposed for Canton Township farmland

Members of the Canton Township Planning Commission unanimously recommended a request to rezone an 11-acre farm near the intersection of Cherry Hill and Beck Road to accommodate construction of luxury condominiums.

Pulte Homes plans a 68-unit detached single family condominium development on 34.68 acres of property, which is among the last property zoned as farmland in the township. The planning commissioners found that the rezoning request presented last week by Mike Noles, a spokesman for the The Umlor Group, met the 10 requirements for rezoning.

The proposed condominiums will range in price from $400,000 to upwards of $500,000, Noles said. He suggested that members of the homeowner's association in the new condominiums would pay about $1,800 for snow removal and landscaping maintenance.

The project will now go to the Canton Board of Trustees for consideration. If approved by the board, the developer will prepare a site plan for the project which includes another two parcels of land abutting the farmland already zoned for residential use. As presented, exit and entry would be from both Beck and Cherry Hill roads, a concern of some commission members aware of traffic on Beck Road.

Noles said if the site plan process was approved, construction at the site could begin in approximately one year.

Plans for first Northville traffic roundabout discussed

Plans for the proposed planned traffic roundabout at Seven Mile and Sheldon roads in downtown Northville were presented at a recent open house meeting at the city Community Center.

Northville Department of Public Works Director Mike Domine and representatives from OHM Advisors discussed the new traffic feature, one of the first in Wayne County, during the public meeting Aug. 12.

The roundabout was approved by members of the city council July 15 following a presentation by engineer John Katers landscape architect Stacy Tober from the design and engineering firm OHM Advisors. The plans presented included landscaping, crosswalks, costs and scheduling. The cost of the roundabout is estimated at $2.55 million with $2.17 million to be funded by federal grants and a grant match of $375,000 to be paid by the city.

Construction is scheduled to begin in July 2025 and be complete in three months, according to officials. The proposed roundabout will create a well-defined, one-way circular intersection, according to city officials. The planned configuration will address concerns with the existing intersection and benefit the city, they said.

Among the benefits addressed by officials were the lower speed limits of 15 to 25 m.p.h. due to curb lines and curvature of the roundabout. Safety for pedestrians is also a feature of the new installation, officials said, as currently a pedestrian must traverse 75 feet of pavement while exposed to right and left-turning vehicles.

With the proposed roundabout, the crossing distance is reduced to 13 to 18 feet with only one direction of traffic to watch at each crossing.

The roundabout will include a dedicated space for bicyclists that will either tie-in to paved shoulders or provide a shared travel/bicycle lane. Bicyclists will have the option to ride with traffic or use entrance and exit ramps to navigate the roundabout, according to current plans.

Engineers believe the roundabout will reduce the number of locations where vehicle and pedestrian paths cross since opposing traffic is separated and circulates in a one-way direction, officials said. In comparison, the current condition includes several vehicle turning paths, especially at the pedestrian crossings.

The roundabout is expected to provide an additional benefit of less vehicle idling, reducing air pollution, and reduced noise, according to consultants.

For more information submit questions by Sept. 3 at the OHM website. Questions will be compiled into a Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) page and posted on the city website.

Dancers

In addition to the colorfully clad dancers performing on stage at the Fall Festival every year, the group hosts the famous Polish Kitchen, usually at the corner of Main Street and Penniman, where genuine Polish recipes are available for sale. The families all volunteer at the booth which is the main fundraiser of the year and supports the group's operating budget and ability to buy and create new costumes for the dancers. Boyle said her husband, Andrew would be manning the booth with the other volunteers.

"It's critical for us, so we are very grateful for the ways the community comes out to support us each year," Boyle said. "I also would be remiss to not thank our food supplier, Srodek's Quality Polish Food. They have been a wonderful partner with our organization for many years," she added.

" We are so grateful to the Fall Festival," Boyle said. "We love being there." She added that some of her happiest childhood memories are of performing on the Kellogg Park stage.

"There are several families in the group who have passed down the traditions," she said. "We have a corps of alumni families like my father, John Stawasz and Ron and Barb Martin, who have been mainstays of the group for years. They play such a critical role in our group, but now they are trying to pass the responsibilities on to the next generation," she said.

The dancers will appear on the Kellogg Park stage at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept.7 during the three-day Plymouth Fall Festival which begins Friday, Sept. 6.
